Featuring the Art of...

Joanna Wilson

Camera close at hand, light, landscapes and portraiture are my passion. I return often to my favourite subject in Creston, Millennium Park's Japanese Garden. This series was taken in one session. The light was right as I discovered the wide angle/macro attributes of my new camera. Years ago, living on Kootenay Lake, my first 35 mm camera focused on my children and the Kootenay landscape. Later I co founded Natural Lights Photography, with Geri Buchanan. Today, discovering subjects through every day living, and capturing them in the 'best possible light', is my joy.

Carolyn Stone

My main interest is in the use of watercolour, a medium that has provided me with the flexibility to explore many styles from Impressionism to realistic paintings. I am always looking for the next challenge that pushes my abilities further and allows me to explore advanced techniques and processes while capturing beauty and colour.

Wendy Franz

Wendy Franz is a self-taught artist with a background in graphic design. Growing up in the Kootenays has influenced her art, incorporating the beauty of both animals and nature in her work. She is known for her whimsical watercolour creations and has recently discovered the art of acrylic pouring, combining that with her acrylic painting. Wendy's passion for art, love for colour and unique style has helped her stand out, making it possible to sell her work abroad. Her artwork can be found as far away as Australia, New Zealand and Africa.

Carrie Lucas

I enjoy doing art, both watercolour and encaustic wax.
